DE-STRESSING YOUR FAMILY!

No doubt, family life can be stressful! While there's no way to take stress completely out of your household, the following tips can make life more relaxing, enjoyable and emotionally healthy for your whole family:

- * Take time daily to talk as a family; encourage open expressions of feelings and emotions; really listen to each other. (Turn off the tv!)
  - * Encourage your family to share their daily stressors.
  - * Post a large calendar where all family members can write down their schedules.
  - * Look at extra-curricular activities. If children or parents show signs of too much stress, cut back.
  - * Set a limit on children's activities and then let them choose the ones they really want to do.
  - * Hold weekly family meetings to:
Look at everyone's schedule for the week
Resolve problem areas and conflicts
Set expectations for sharing the "load"
  - * Develop a family priority list. What is really important? What can be let go?
  - * Set reasonable expectations for yourself and other family members.
  - * Problem solve....Meals can be nutritious without a lot of work! The world won't fall apart if a bed isn't made!
  - * Identify those problems that put stress on everyone, i.e., morning hassles, homework or bedtimes; work out a solution and stick to it!
- Remember, children are only young once.
Enjoy them while you have the chance!

Family discussion topic: What's one problem you solved at school this week in class or with a classmate?

After a long weekend full of snow and fun, we return to class stories of winter adventures. The crisp air and lingering holiday spirit add a festive charm to our routine, making even the continuation of MAP testing feel like a new challenge to embrace. As we settle into our desks, memories of snowball fights and cozy firesides warm our thoughts, ready to fuel our minds for the tasks ahead. Here's to conquering tests and cherishing the frosty magic that lingers just outside the classroom window!

Family discussion topic: What is the most challenging things about your age right now?

Please ensure that students (especially bus riders) will need to have their ID badges daily.

Hang Out with Your Kids!

One of the best ways to really get to know your child and understand his world is to "hang out together"! Children are not always good at telling mom or dad what their stresses and worries are. You can get in touch with your child's needs and at the same time, nurture your relationship by:

- ◊ just hanging out together...doing something you mutually enjoy
- ◊ letting your child choose how to spend this special time together
- ◊ excluding everyone else...this is YOUR time!
- ◊ getting away from it all...the TV, telephone, interruptions
- ◊ sometimes choosing a private spot (fishing beside a quiet creek, picnic in the woods, etc.)
- ◊ allowing for "quiet" time when there isn't any conversation; kids often need time to work up the nerve to tell parents something important
- ◊ developing a hobby or special interest that belongs just to the two of you

- ◊ laughing, being silly
- ◊ letting your child know how special it is when just the two of you are together!
